

Diabetic Feels Toes

Dr. Harry

I shared the Great Health website with a diabetic customer three weeks ago, and told him about how arginine may help him if he would be interested, and he asked me on the spot if I had some. I did, so I left it with him. I was back to his place this week, and asked if he had noticed any benefit yet. His eyes lit up and he said he had and within four days. What he had not told me when I was there the previous time was that his circulation was bad enough that his toes on one foot were numb. In four days, the feeling had come back. He has started exercising and has two other friends that are diabetic and want some info. One life at a time!
